AMWA Southwest to hold Eighth Annual Career Roundtables Meeting

Houston, TX—The Southwest Chapter of the American Medical Writers Association invites anyone interested in scientific and medical communication to attend its Eighth Annual Career Roundtables meeting in Houston on Saturday, May 12, 2007.

Attendees will have the opportunity to participate in one of four discussions, each beginning with a short presentation by the roundtable leader and followed by a discussion with the participants. This year's topics will be:

- How to Capture Website Visitors' Attention in 8 Seconds or Less: The First Law of Writing for the Web
- The Importance of Instructions for Authors: A Journal Editor's View
- The Business of Being a Freelancer
- What's New in the 10th Edition of the AMA Manual of Style?

The meeting will be held at Baba Yega restaurant, 2607 Grant Street, from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. The cost, which includes a brunch buffet, is $23 for AMWA members and $26 for nonmembers. For registration or more information, contact Anita Frijhoff, Program Chair, at (512) 320-1612 ext. 1548 or afrijhoff@amwasouthwest.org. The deadline for registration is Thursday, May 10, 2007.

AMWA is a national organization of more than 5,000 writers, editors and other professionals in medicine and science. The association was founded in 1940 and has regional chapters throughout the United States and Canada, with members in 26 countries. The Southwest Chapter includes more than 250 members in Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.
